Visa

To enter Argentina, visa requirements depend on your nationality and the purpose of your trip. Citizens of many countries do not require a tourist visa for up to 90 days. If you plan to stay longer or work, or if your country requires a visa, you must apply for one at an Argentine consulate.

There are currently no mandatory vaccinations for entering Argentina as a tourist. However, vaccination against yellow fever is recommended if you are traveling to high-risk areas, especially the jungle regions in the north of the country.
